In September 2022, CPV Corporate, presented by Olesya Chrysanthou had the privilege of speaking at the Arab Security Conference 2022, addressing a crucial topic for accounting professionals - Cyber Crime & AML perspective.

The rise of digitalization has led to an increase in cybercrime, and accounting professionals must understand how this affects their work. Cybercriminals are continually finding new ways to exploit the vulnerabilities of financial institutions and businesses, making it necessary to stay updated with the latest AML (Anti-Money Laundering) regulations and procedures.

During the presentation, Olesya discussed the current landscape of cybercrime and the various tactics used by cybercriminals to commit fraud. It explained how AML procedures could help detect and prevent cybercrime, as well as the role of accounting professionals in maintaining compliance with AML regulations.

Accounting practitioners have to understand the importance of protecting the financial interests of clients and maintaining the authenticity of the financial system. Keeping informed of the latest developments in cybersecurity and AML compliance is crucial for achieving this goal.

It was encouraging to see the keen interest and engagement of the audience, who raised number of questions about cybersecurity and AML compliance.

The conference provided an excellent platform for industry experts to share their expertise and knowledge, being a part of it was a great honor.

Looking forward to contributing to this discussion again at the Arab Security Conference in the future.
